DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 13,15 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Naoki et al (JP 09-259391) and further in view of Urabe (6125282).

1. Regarding claim 13,15 Naoki et al teaches a processing apparatus operatively coupled between a communication equipment and an information processing apparatus, comprising (fig. 1):

an identifying part configured to identify a type of the communication equipment and to output an identification signal corresponding to the identified type of the communication equipment, said type of communication equipment including a mobile (fig. 1 element 4) communication (para. # 0012-0014, 0025-0026, 0047-0049 and 0052); and a switching part configured to switch the communication protocol prestored for each type of the communication equipment, based on the identification signal (page 2, para. # 0007, page # 5, para. 0029). Although Naoki et al teaches device 1 is equipped with the interface 18 linked to various telephones (4a-4c). Corresponding to the various telephones installed in the information offer station 6, digital 9600 (1st type of protocol) portable telephone 4a, digital 2400 portable telephone 4b and analog type portable telephone 4c (different communication protocols or 2nd type of protocol), and other various telephones can be connected to an interface 18. Telephone classification discernment section 1a identifies the classification of the telephone 4 connected to the traffic information communication device 1. If the classification of Telephones 4a-4c sticks for whether being a digital type portable telephone or an analog type portable telephone, it changes the cable linked to an interface 18, and its jack, for example, and can identify by detecting the difference by the detecting signal (para. # 0012-0014, 0025-0026, 0047-0049 and 0052). Naoki et al does not specifically teach Personal Handyphone system (PHS) communication protocol.

In an analogous art, Urabe teaches that digital phones in Japan, such as those taught by Naoki et al, may comprise personal cellular, and PHS phones (col. 1 lines, 12-31). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the device of Bloebaum et al by specifically adding feature Personal Handyphone system to use the system of Naoki et al to identify the digital phones of Urabe, as Urabe states that they are the types of digital phones used in the environment to which Naoki et al is applied.

Response to Arguments

2. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 13,15 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
